RAINIER VISTA

VOLUME XXXVIII

AUBURN ACADEMY

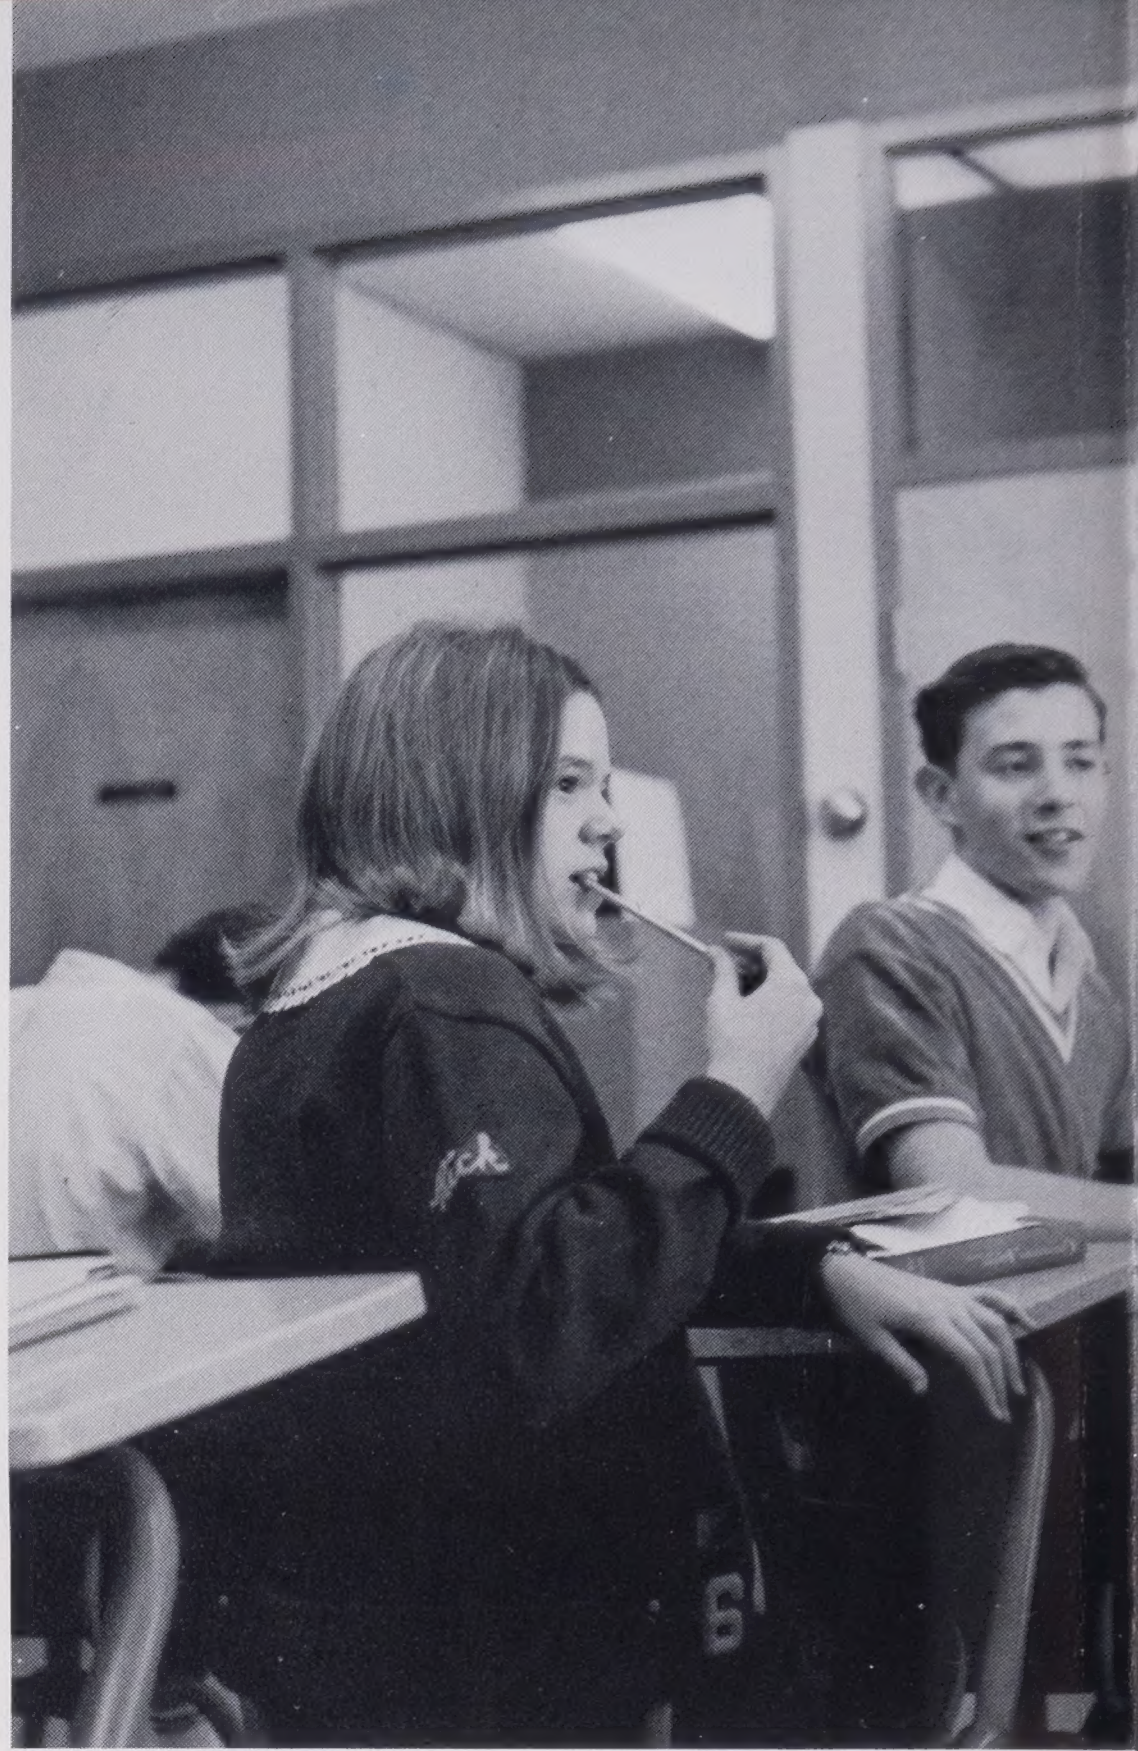

AUBURN, WASHINGTON

Prologue:

For some the day dawns dark indeed. To most come mixed feelings of anticipation and wariness, but then that first vibrant spark of "belonging" leaps at them. Summer is shut down, nevertheless the inward response is one of identification.

Registration day, September 4, brought 477 pupils together on a lovely manicured campus. They were to face learning in all its forms during the year.

Amid din and organized confusion stands an awed new student--he's being battered by new sounds and impressions -- "Hi, Jim, didja have a good summer?" --" . . . and welcome to Auburn . . . " -- "You mean I really do have a choice between Algebra and General Math?"

Having negotiated banquets, trying exams, and the daily school life in between, that "new student" is now a polished Auburnian.

He met educators, intriguing situations, and his shadow several times. Deep friendships broadened his outlook and gave real security when he was "down and out."

At the end of the day, when the glowing chatter of old and new acquaintances had chased the last small lurkings of apprehension from his mind, he knew he would survive.

*to him we dedicate this 1967-68
"Rainier Vista."*

They work together to create a total Christian environment designed to develop in each student his potential in three areas:

HEAD

Academic standards are among the highest in the state, meeting the requirements of the Association of Seventh-day Adventist Colleges and Secondary Schools, the Washington State Board of Education, and the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools. Curriculum and teaching methods emphasize preparation for higher education.

HEART

The staff are dedicated to restoring the image of God in every individual. Through the various religious organizations leadership opportunities are available to students. Voice of Youth prepares teams to present programs for various churches throughout the conference.

HAND

Last year's $6,000 gymnasium equipment campaign under the expert leadership of Mr. Rowe and Mr. Miller, vaulted the Physical Education program into department status. Advanced courses in gymnastics, golf, tennis, and other sports are featured. Another phase of emphasis placed on development of the hand is the available work program. Harris Pine Mills employs approximately one hundred thirty students who earn most of their tuition. In the various work departments on campus students earn about $106,000.00 annually.

Miss Dorothy Hessong
Assistant Dean of Girls
Sabbath School Advisor

One hundred thirty-five girls live in Nelson Hall, and forty-five in Gibson, where the interior was completely re-decorated in 1968. For each girl who lived in either, there are varied scenes which compose memories of "dorm life." Some of these may have been long, late "gab" sessions, unsuccessful attempts to slip past the study period monitor, or the girl next door who practiced her ukelele at all times. Perhaps the thumps of the exercises done at 10:00 p.m. by the girls living directly above have been forgotten, but the chums and roommates who helped bear homesickness and semester tests, and who shared gladness and fun can never be forgotten.

Ribbons, flowers, noteboards, studying- dorm life.

Deans

Witzel Hall celebrated its fifth birthday this year. This residence hall for boys required a staff numbering twenty with several part-time substitutes. One was a girl, Kathy Wenger, who held what probably rated as the most sought after job among girls, secretary to the assistant dean. Jobs in Witzel Hall ranged from janitorial service to secretary to the dean.

Junior Class Advisor

Guiding students in doctrine fundamentals is a challenge accepted by Mr. Lowe in the first year of application.

While Freshmen and Sophomores learned about old and new testament history, the Bible became the textbook for Juniors intensive study of SDA doctrines. A new program of independent study gave Seniors opportunity for exploring areas of individual interest. All learned more about applying Christian principles to modern living.

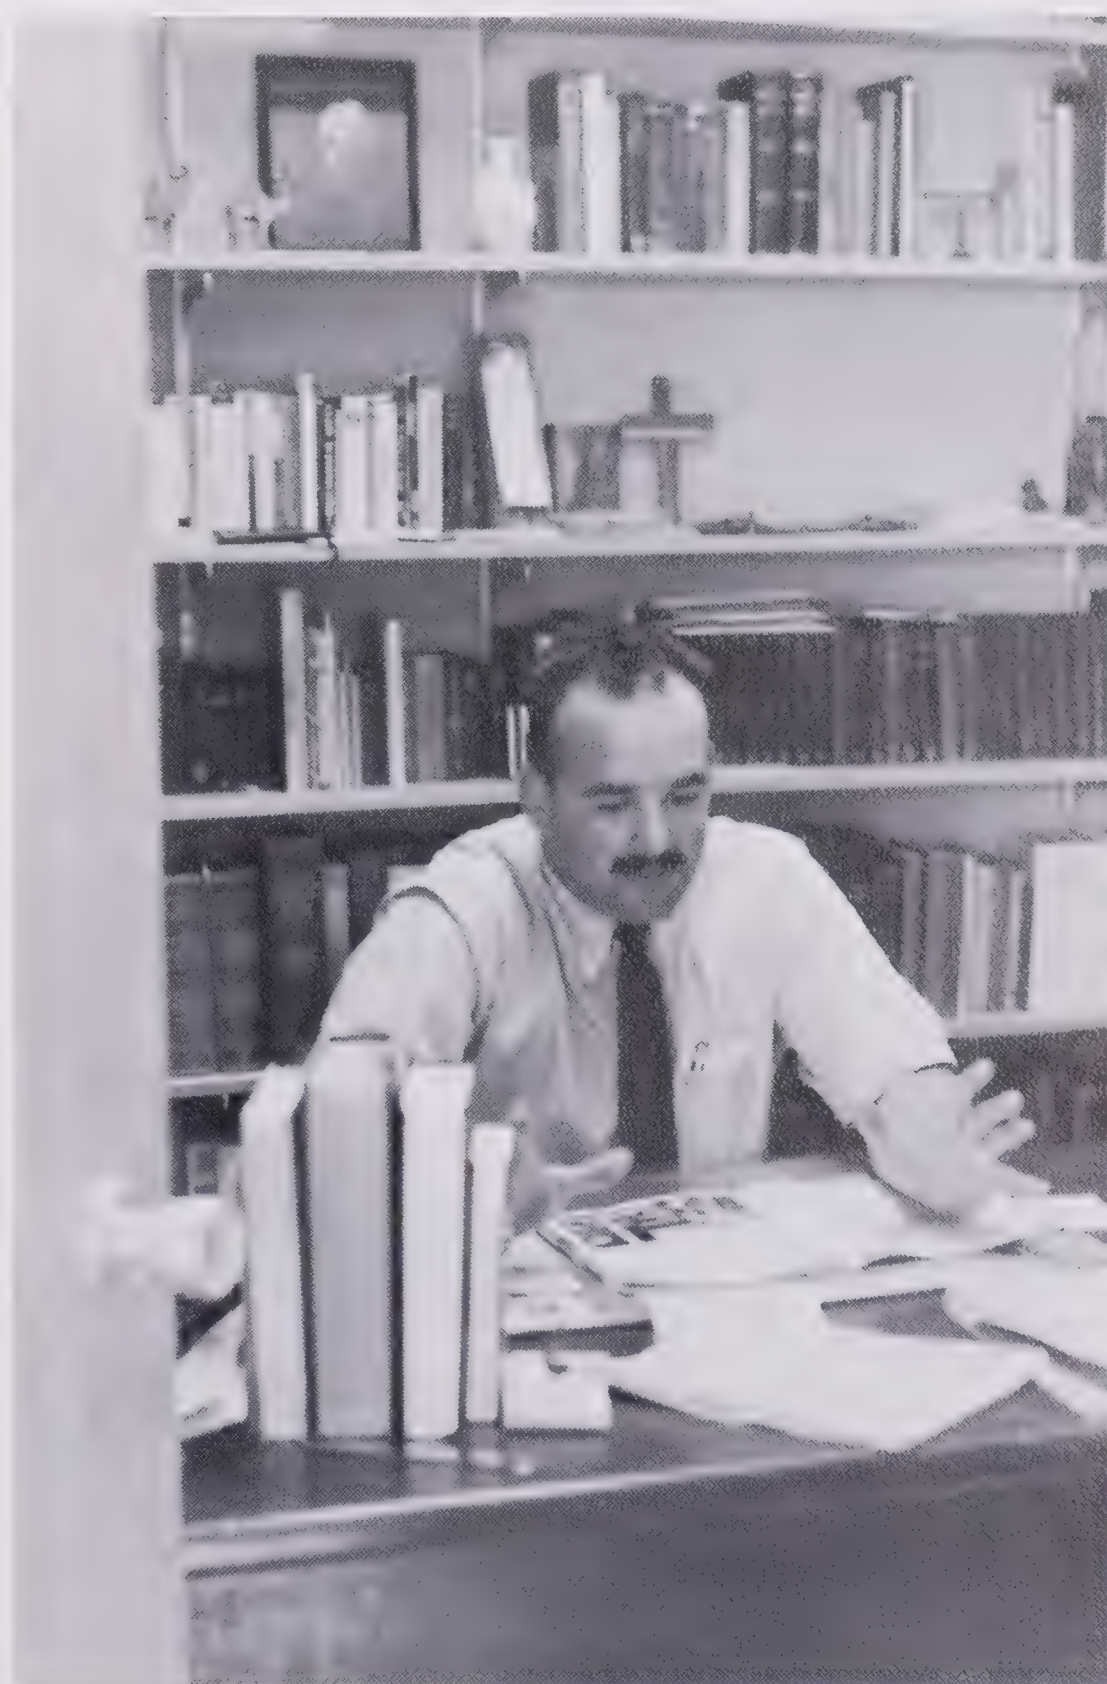

This year a Bible Curriculum Center, composed of material on several Bible-related subjects, collected by the Bible teachers, was used to good advantage by many students. For some of them, a chat with one of the guidance personnel marked a turning point.

Mrs. Syphers' Sophomore New Testament class divides into groups to discuss a topic.

Carol Pulley files pamphlets for future use in the Bible Curriculum center.

Pastor Moyer is always delighted to have someone come in for a chat.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Crays, English department head, an advanced writing course was added to the curriculum. This course was designed to prepare Auburn seniors for the College Entrance Examination Board placement test. Methods of composition and literature analysis were included in the course.

Of academic departments, English was the largest. Five teachers taught 14 sections of the rudiments and intricacies of Shakespeare's tongue.

Elder Stoehr created the Foreign Language program presented on January 6. It consisted of music and poetry in German, Spanish, and French.

Science and Its Language,

The students who undertook classes in Auburn's mathematics and science departments learned careful, modern lab procedures and realized the importance of precision. Beyond this, they experienced the thrill of discovering for themselves basic principles. In spite of the endless questions their answers led to, they were inspired with confidence and real joy of accomplishment as they met stiff challenges and overcame them.

In this mathematics department, a new class was initiated by Mr. Parker. Called Math IV, the class studied complicated matrices, conic sections, and introduction to calculus. For them this was a step beyond Algebra II.

The Science department introduced a new class, General Science, to take the place of Biology. The class, shared by Mr. Parker and Mr. Weir, studied biology, chemistry and physics.

Mr. Mummert introduces a new concept in mathematics to his algebra class.

Mathematics

On a Physics class field trip to the University of Washington's Physics laboratory, the class listens to the guide explain the Van de Graaf particle accelerator.

During the year five new adding machines, two calculators and several book-keeping machines were added to the department. A ten-week office machines course at the Victor Company netted Mr. Crays, head of the department, a certificate of proficiency, in the operation of their machines.

Social Studies

Teaching past and present history is a big job for Mr. Wentland and Mr. Miller. Six sections were taught in United States History, one of these by Mr. Clyde Smith, treasurer. Current World Affairs kept the seniors occupied in learning more about the world they live in.

Mr. Ron Miller

Washington State History
A.S.A.A. Advisor

Mr. Wentland, in his relaxed manner, discussing articles in a weekly news magazine.

Mrs. Bessie Soule
Librarian

Library

The library, under Mrs. Soule's direction, provided a quiet atmosphere for reading or studying. Used to good advantage was the large reference section. This year the library subscribed to 84 periodicals and 3 daily newspapers. Approximately $2,500 was spent for new books.

Linda Pemberton and Doug Janke discuss current events on and off campus.

Mrs. Florence Aime

Cafeteria

The Auburn Academy cafeteria served a record average of 90 meals per month to each of the 450 hungry teen-agers. For the cafeteria student workers, this meant rising at 5:20 a.m. to start breakfast preparations. The supper crew finished cleaning at 7:00 p.m.

The competence of the cafeteria supervisors was proved in good meals always served on time. Because of the cosmopolitan nature of the student body, the cooks used a variety of dishes, especially as treats for banquets and other special occasions.

This business of waiting for chow gets pretty tedious at times.

Tostados, a favorite dinner.

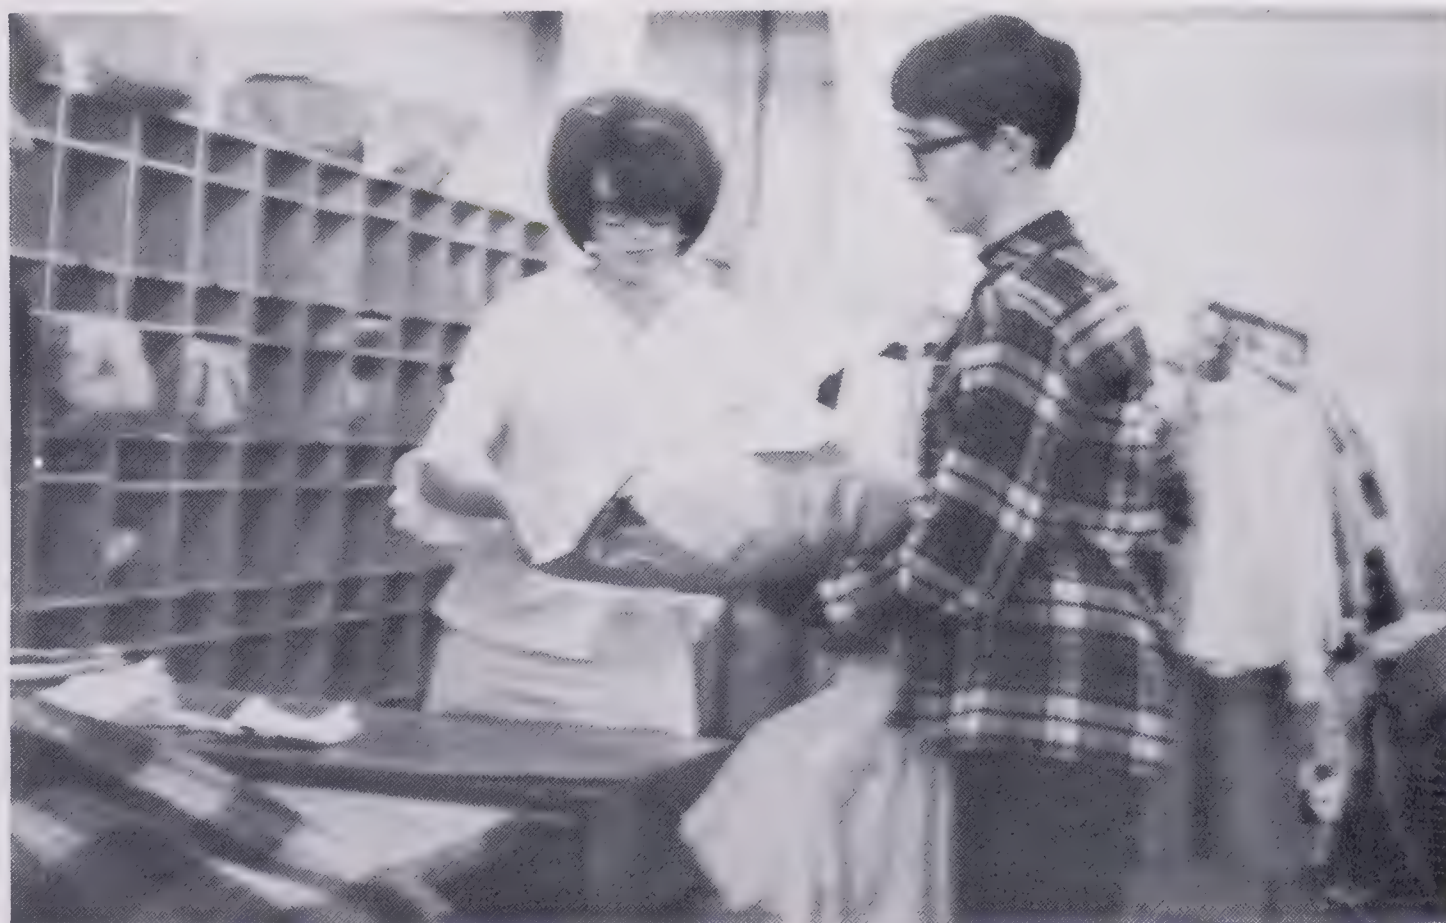

"This is the way we make a bed, and hospital corners-----" states Miss McKnight to Home Ec. I students.

Home Economics, Laundry, and School Store

The well-equipped and cheerily decorated home economics lab was the setting for some of the most popular classes. Changes in the department have made it possible for interested girls to take three full years of home economics. Home Management, and Family Life which concerns child and personality development, were added to the usual classes of Home Ec I, Advanced Foods, and Tailoring.

For the laundry department, washing, drying and ironing linen and clothes for 350 students each week was a big task. This department also cared for the laundry from the cafeteria and the physical education department.

"Happiness is clean laundry every Thursday night." Ron Anderson's favorite theme song.

Auburn Academy's concert band participated in campus concerts including a Christmas concert.

The touring band, under the able direction of Mr. Leland Quinn, gave concerts throughout the state.

Winter and Spring Concerts Highlight Bands' Schedule

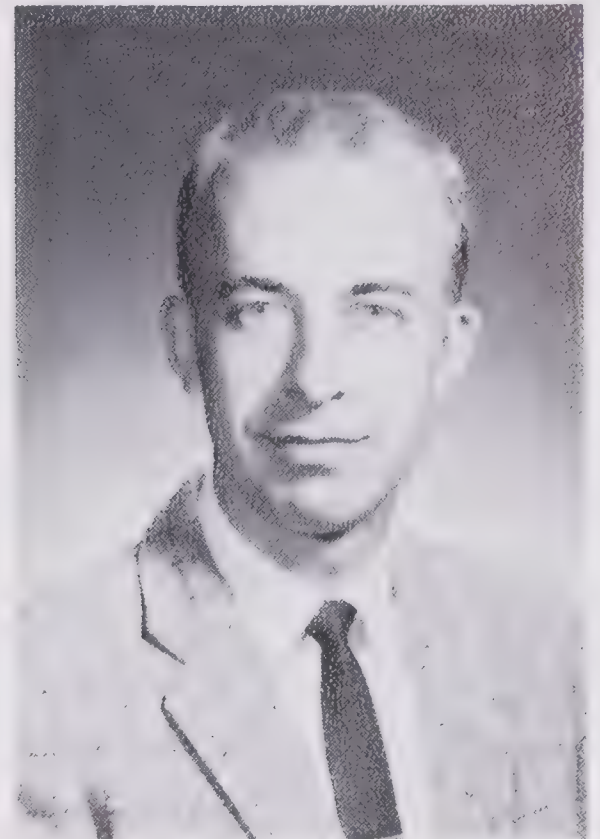

Under Mr. Quinn's direction, the Auburn Academy band made a number of trips to present sacred and secular concerts for Washington church groups. The Academy tumbling team accompanied the musical group on several occasions. This year new orchestra bells were added to the variety of percussion instruments.

Auburn Academy was represented by some of its best musicians at the band clinic at Walla Walla College.

Choral Groups Participate in Sacred and Secular Activities

The all senior Auburn Academy Singers proved their definite right to existence in this, their first year. Each member was chosen for his serious interest in music and for his musical ability. Spicy rhythm and a lyric blend characterized their sound. Singers provided music for evangelistic meetings, a Sweetheart banquet, and gave several concerts in the Conference.

The 30-voice Sylvan Chorus has been active every year since 1954, when Mr. Paul Coleman organized an ensemble to sing responses for church services. The group toured through the conference this year, and gave voice to many inspiring anthems of praise and lively secular songs. All classes contributed singers to the Sylvan Chorus.

Both organizations were accompanied by Jan Parker, who gave untiringly of her time during practice and on tour.

Auburn Academy Singers, most recent musical group, enhanced religious and secular programs.

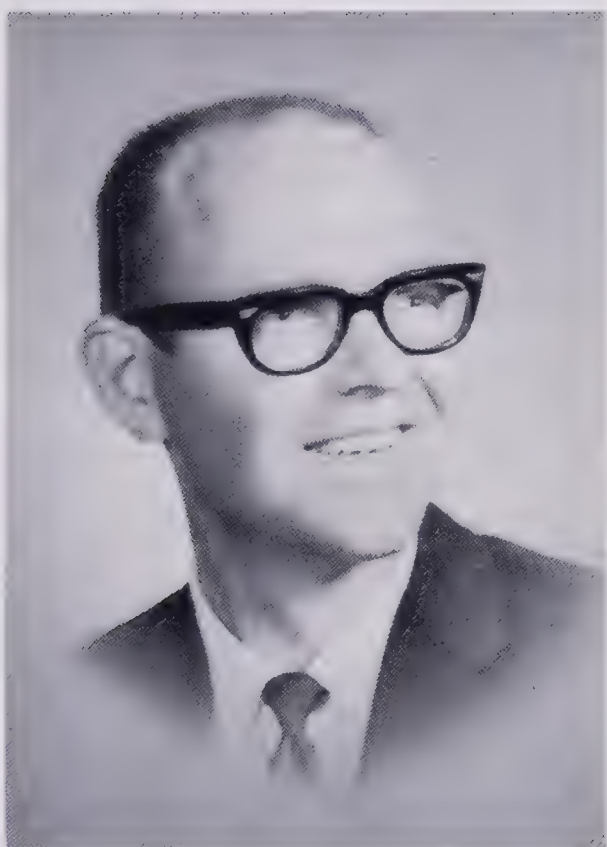

As they toured, the Sylvan Chorus formed a more concise picture of Auburn Academy for many people.

Mrs. Berry and her assistant, Mrs. Wentland, maintained small clinics in both Witzel and Nelson Halls. They were available in case of emergency and treated minor illnesses of dorm students. This year the nurses again administered influenza immunizations to interested students and faculty.

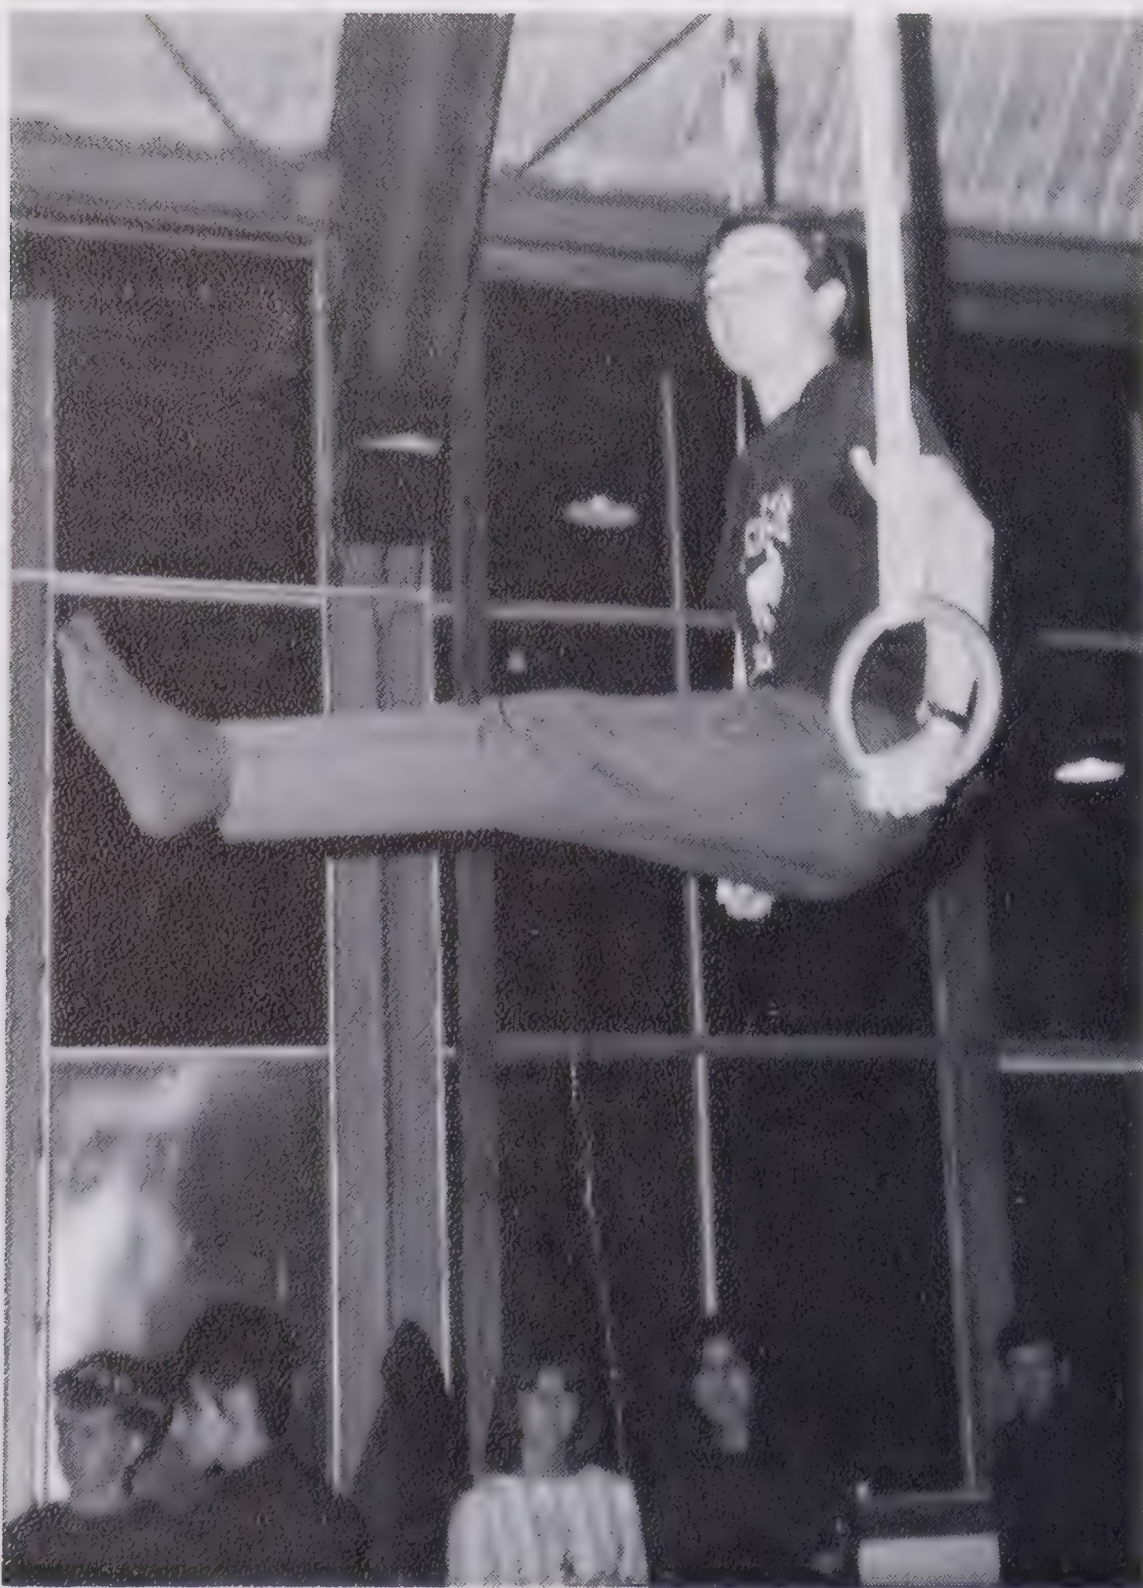

The Advanced Physical Education class featured individual sports such as tennis, archery, soccer, and snow skiing. New specialized equipment was purchased for these classes.

Industrial Arts

Besides teaching Driver Education Mr. Farver taught Pre-Flight this year. During the school year he took flying lessons. Twenty-four students were prepared for the Federal Aviation Agency written examination to obtain private flying licenses.

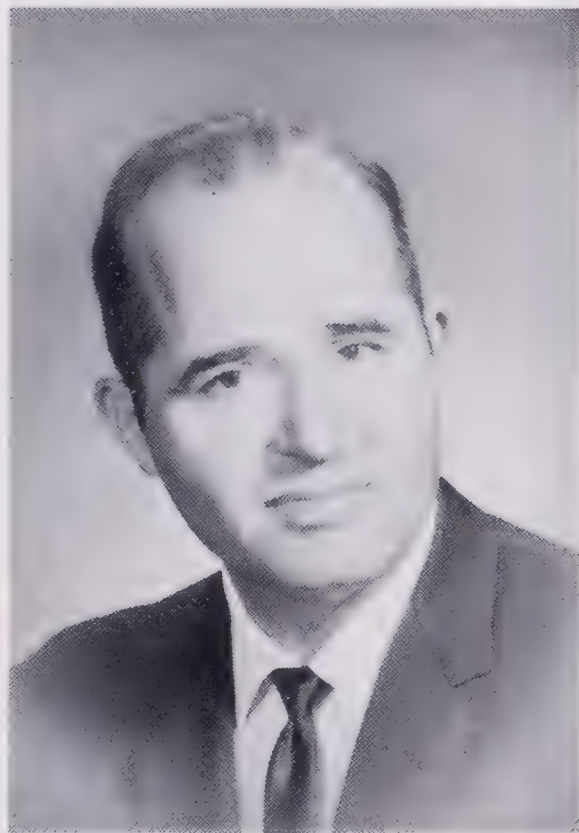

The growing industrial arts department was given a boost when the Auto Mechanics division received $700 worth of new tools.

SOPHOMORES

wonder at the intricacies of geometry, display growing interest in becoming upperclassmen, can go for seven weeks without either calling or going home, manifest a "take it or leave it" attitude toward P. E. , and take on some of the old Academy "polish."

JUNIORS

learn what President Wilson's foreign policy was, join choir or band, begin to feel like upperclassmen, try to defeat Seniors in sports, start to worry about careers, give a banquet for the Seniors, and march at graduation.

SENIORS

They've "arrived." Collectively sophisticated, outgoing and intelligent, they are individually concerned with their future careers. They gleefully learn their status on campus, form special friendships, and appreciate their teachers and counselors. Finally received are diplomas, symbols of an educational philosophy that made them whole persons—living testimonies of Head, Heart, and Hand education.

Auburn life is a myriad of activities—a kaleidoscope of opportunities. Each Auburnian has a good chance to express himself to others and to fulfill his desires.

FALL

This is an experience of getting to know each other--becoming a school family. Some of the fall events--the publications campaign, the highly successful Casa Loma Amateur Hour, and the fruitful Week of Prayer with Elder Duane Corwin are preliminaries to other important events.

WINTER

Now student leadership has built strong organizations. Voice of Youth speakers are busy, and Student Week of Prayer brings spiritual renewal. Evenings spent Christmas carolling will long be remembered. A flurry of excitement accompanies the annual Junior-Senior Banquet and class parties.

SPRING

The Zeta Kappa benefit program leads an impressive list of activities. Campus Day and home concerts by choir and band follow in rapid succession and after Academy Day--well, one would say the year comes to a glorious climax - graduation.

These events are planned to further complete development in the Head, Heart and Hand tradition.

Sabbath School officers during first semester: Cherie Kincaid, Prudy Ehrhardt, Steve Brown, Denise Altman, John McGhee, Pam Ludwig, Virginia Martin and Carol Trapp.

Sabbath School and MV Lend

SECOND SEMESTER OFFICERS: Arlene Schultz, Candace Kelly, Karen Seibold, Diane Edwards, Chris Thiessen, Barry Long, Norbert Schrenk, and Mary Hale.

Student Sabbath School officers afforded practice for the church's future leaders in providing an interesting variety of programs. A total of eight regular officers each semester included superintendents and secretaries, besides the pianists, organists, songleaders, and hostesses chosen weekly. Several students enjoyed helping in the children's Sabbath School departments of the academy church.

Except for Sabbath School during leaves and vacations, able young people took responsibility for all Sabbath School programs from September through May.

First semester MV leaders encourage students to witness for Christ. Karen Rupert, Doug Janke, Larry Chadwick, Steve Barrow, Emily Wyman, Melinda Fiedler, Nancy Loewe, Connie Schlehuber, Prudy Ehrhardt, and B. C. Moyer, Advisor.

Spiritual Inspiration

Considerable vitality characterized the Auburn Academy Missionary Volunteer Society in 1967-68. Sunshine singing bands visited shut-ins at Auburn nursing homes. Help for students interested in earning Master Guide and Silver Medallion awards was offered and Bible marking classes were held. For one MV project, students devoted several hours in preparing 300 Christmas messages and cards for Adventist servicemen in Vietnam. Enthusiastic student leaders provided worthwhile activities for Sabbath afternoons.

Intent on bringing a moment of happiness, students sign Christmas cards for soldiers in Vietnam.

Emphasizing service and Christians at work, second semester leaders were: Terry Werner, Kathi Roy, Don Monson, Gilbert Ziegler, Cherie Kincaid, and JoAnn White.

Voice of Youth Members Share Their Faith

Leading out in first semester activities were: Elder D. Anderson, advisor; Gordon Reoch, Prudy Ehrhardt, Emily Wyman, Ernie Henry, and B. C. Moyer, advisor.

Through the active Voice of Youth organization, many students found opportunity to share their faith and gain experience in spiritual leadership. Officers conducted weekly Friday evening meetings, and frequently representatives were sent to fifteen Washington Conference churches. At each of these, Voice of Youth speakers and musicians presented the church services. On some trips student story tellers for the Sabbath School children's divisions accompanied the speakers.

The student week of spiritual emphasis at Auburn Academy was the highlight of the year's Voice of Youth activities. During this week student speakers gave sermons for morning and evening meetings. Many students will remember the meaningful theme from Steps to Christ and their decisions to walk more constantly with God.

Directing second semester activities were: Leonard Powell, Steve Barrow, Laura Libby, and Karen Seibold.

WEEK OF PRAYER SPEAKERS: Gordon Reoch, Larry Gohl, Prudy Ehrhardt, Carol Trapp, Laura Libby, Leonard Powell, Cherie Kincaid, Tom Becraft, Nadine Wheeler, Connie McClannahan, Diane Nodel, Steve Barrow, Don Monson, and Barry Long. NOT SHOWN: Val Dwyer, and Jay Baker.

Temperance Club Revived

Under the strong leadership of several junior students, the Temperance Club was revived to a large, active club during the second semester. Besides sponsoring the annual orations contest club members visited the Indians of the Skokomish Reservation and gave a short temperance program there. The definite influence of an active club was felt on campus as many students rose early each morning to run on the track for exercise.

Local Temperance Orations Contest winner, Diane Edwards, discusses contest rules with Mr. Smith, Temperance Club advisor.

With a feeling of accomplishment, returned carollers enjoy cookies and hot chocolate. Exchanging unusual experiences are Gary Wellman, Sondra Skau, and Debbie Meacham.

Refreshments are momentarily disregarded as students eagerly count Ingathering money.

Ingathering Totals Top Past Records

Ingathering days were marked by cheerful, enthusiastic participation. With Pastor Moyer's help, Elder Anderson organized 38 bands of young people for two Saturday evenings' carolling outings and earlier Ingathering Field Day. These, plus an evening auction of baked goods brought a total of $3,893, the greatest amount raised for Ingathering in any one year by Auburn Academy.

The rewards were more than monetary. Change of pace and scene, and hours with good friends were worth the time contributed. Students discovered that Ingathering is fun.

Equipped with smiles and informative literature, Elaine Carver, Dick Fleming, Prudy Ehrhardt, and Jerry Magnussen are ready for Ingathering Field Day.

Elder Duane Corwin, pastor of the Vancouver, Washington, church.

Weeks of Spiritual Emphasis

Auburn Academy's Christian philosophy of education included real concern for not only the physical and mental, but also the spiritual needs of each student. This was the reason for three separate weeks set apart to focus attention on real Christianity. During the first of these, September 24 through September 30, Elder Duane Corwin presented a series of conversational, slide-illustrated talks on gospel doctrines.

The second week of prayer, January 29 through February 3, was directed by earnest students who presented "Steps to Christ" as the theme.

The spring week of spiritual emphasis was conducted by Elder Clyde Mundy. Interesting panel discussions were held each morning; evening meetings included lively sinspirations conducted by Elder Broder. Through the week ran the theme "Christ is real."

Elder Ernest Broder, pastor of the Milwaukie, Oregon, church.

Elder Clyde Mundy, pastor of the Corvallis, Oregon, church.

Casa Loma Officers Enliven First Half of School Year

Amateur Hour was the crowning achievement of first semester Casa Loma programs. Aside from the $800 net gain to the club treasury, fine entertainment was provided for the 1100 people present.

Casa Loma officers presented programs on Monday evenings to edify and entertain. Many of the first semester C. L. programs were sporting events. A representative of the Seattle Totems hockey team presented a hockey film and distributed a few choice tickets to Totem home games. Freshman-Sophomore and Junior-Senior games were also played. The Knights of Casa Loma participated in intramural sports. Baseball, football, basketball, and track tournaments were held. Several trips were made during the year to the YMCA swimming pool in Auburn.

FIRST SEMESTER OFFICERS: Dave Futch, Treasurer; Leonard Powell, Sergeant at Arms; Larry Morris, Pianist; Darrell McWilliams, Chorister; Jim Matiko, Secretary; Jesse Calkins, Sports Secretary; Paul Rasmussen, Spiritual Vice-president; Terry Bock, Social Vice-president; Larry Gohl, President.

Fred Epperly didn't conform during "clash day." Traitor or receives retribution!

Poor little "Thuthie" finally learned how to blow her nose.

Folksinger June Beauchamp masters a "finger style" guitar.

Casa Loma Adds Varied Activities during Second Semester

Casa Loma's second semester started with a film "The Miracle of the White Stallions". Also scheduled were a feed, an informative lecture on motorcycles, and other short films and talks. The highlight of the second semester was the Casa Loma banquet, which is held every other year. It was patterned after a typical Gay 90's theme and the decor was of that era also. Another event was the Inter-Dorm Sports Competition, which serves as a qualifying and time trial meet in preparation for the ASAA Campus Day. In keeping with the cultural aims of the club, a joint recital was held in May. Jan Parker, junior (piano), and Fred Dalglish, senior (voice), performed in a semi-formal evening concert.

Another record-breaking run!

Zeta Kappa Officers Provide Round of Activities for the First Semester

Each Monday evening, Nelson Hall's recreation room became a place to share gay laughter with friends and to consider life's finer things. Zeta Kappans took "time out" to garner not only valuable knowledge, but also joyous memories to gladden future reminiscence.

Anna Ivy and the other officers, planned pleasurable activities. Among these were a swimming outing and games and refreshments for a Halloween party. An ambitious project of the club during the first semester was the sale of scented Christmas candles raising $600 to refurnish a small Nelson Hall kitchenette.

"Unforgettables" were the Parents-Daughter Christmas Brunch, and the late December evening that the maidens carolled and presented a gift to the knights of Casa Loma.

Dianne Noodel, Cheryl DeForrest and Connie Horton embark on the candle sale.

The excitement of opening Christmas presents!

Old and new officers mingle at the banquet after installation.

Vim and sparkle characterized second semester Zeta Kappa activities. Identifiable by smart home-made dresses in club colors of red and white, the officers planned activities appealing to any teen-age girl. Among these were feeds, swimming, and other activities. The dormitory open house, held only every other year, was planned on the theme of "April Showers". The girls honored George Washington's birthday by wearing colonial style dresses. A highlight was the Zeta Kappa program presentation of "Jessica's Journey", in April.

Second Semester Zeta Kappa Features Fun

Associated Students' Officers Planned Varied Activities for First Semester

A capable group of officers served the student electorate during the first semester. One original project was secretly raising enough money to pay for a plane ticket to Alaska for Wilbur Bavilla, and another to northern Victoria for Clara Walkus. Some unusual programs included: an Academy Bowl (patterned after the popular GE College Bowl), outdoor marching on a Saturday night with live country-western music afterwards and a lovely Christmas supper featuring Alaska as its theme.

Muu-Muus, leis, sandals, and floral prints were profuse the night of the Fall Festival, sponsored by the A.S.A.A. The evening was enhanced by orchid leis flown from Hawaii.

Bringing Saturday night entertainment on a truck-bed, these "lonesome cowboys" croon the melodies of yester-year.

The Fall Festival provides opportunities for various skills.

A "College Bowl," Jim Ivy, Lesley Hay, Sue Becraft, and Fred Dalglish look on with dismay while Karen Rupert, representing the opposing team, answers one of the last questions.

Joy radiates on the faces of Wilbur Bavilla and Clara Walkus as they depart for homes in Alaska and northern Victoria Island. Round-trip plane tickets were gifts from the Associated Student Body.

On "No-talk" day each fellow wears a limited numbers of ribbons which he must forfeit if he speaks to a girl. With a mischievous grin, Evonne Lewis receives a ribbon from Barry Long.

Second semester ASAA officers: Keith Perman, treasurer; Shirlee Newell, pianist; Dave Rodriguez, spiritual vice-president; Jeri Crall, girls' sports secretary; Ken Perman, president; Prudy Ehrhardt, social vice-president; Pam White, recording secretary; Ron Baxter, chorister; Anita Newell, secretary; Mark Mann, boys' sports secretary; Kathy Wenger, parliamentarian; Wilbur Bavilla, sergeant at arms.

Second Semester Officers Direct Challenging Campaign

The second semester ASAA officers directed a spirited school improvement campaign. The need was floor covering for the Ad building halls; the goal -- $6,000. This goal was met and surpassed. When the last donation was tallied, a total of $9,000 was revealed. The carpet, a closely woven 100% nylon designed for durability, was installed in April. "Topaz" with flecks of gold, orange and olive, was the color selected.

Two teams of students raised the money. The junior-freshman team won a contest against the senior-sophomore side, winning an extra day of spring vacation.

Campus Day was another highlight of the semester's activities. The date of this event was a secret, and the students waited for it with happy anticipation. Many found the athletic contest between classes to be real fun, and others enjoyed the surprise respite from school.

Leaders John McGhee and Dave Dassenko urge the freshmen and juniors forward at beginning of campaign.

Energetic car washers, Jim Ivy and Mike Michelbrink, worked tirelessly for the ASAA carpet campaign.

The senate handles all ASAA business prior to the general meetings of the student body.

"Alpine Holiday"

A scenic, international play depicting life in Germany, Mexico, and France was presented by the Foreign Language Club students, January 6, in Rainier Auditorium.

"Grenada!" Ron Baxter carries the mood to old Spain, bullfights, and fiestas.

The story of Sleeping Beauty is enacted by the German II classes.

Staff Works Diligently to Create Rainier Vista

To staff members "annual" has acquired numerous paradoxical associations. Through the well illustrated pages of the '68 yearbook they will see Room 7 on Tuesday work nights—overflowed wastebaskets beside engrossed copy writers and curly prints sprouting from desk tops. They will hear Ann ask how to spell "Chotipong" and three people at once demand Sue's attention. But after they have forgotten the pain of squeezing out good ideas and the frantic worry before deadlines, they will remember the stimulating creativity, relief as deadlines passed, pleasurable bustling activity as others approached, and the thrill of achievement when the last one was gone and fellow students waited in anticipation for the day the "annual" finally "came out."

Sue Helland, editor in chief, carefully crops pictures prior to laying out a page.

Copy writer, Fred Dalglish, poses in his "workshop."

Working as a unit the Rainier Echoes staff must spend long hours in preparing each issue for publication and circulation: Ken Beck, photographer; Larry Chadwick, advertising manager; Nancy Beck, typist; Janis Kirkendall, associate editor; Darell McWilliams, photographer; Tom Becraft, editor-in-chief; Karen Seibold, typist; Sue Aaron, associate editor; and Annette Bolyard, circulation manager.

Each month Rainier Echoes served to inform not only students and faculty, but also relatives, friends, and alumni of the school. With a circulation of 1900, the paper represented Auburn Academy in 35 states as well as in Europe, Canada, Canal Zone, South Seas, South America, Africa and in South-east Asia.

Each paper was a month's work-- assigning articles, proof-reading, typing, laying out, and finally folding, addressing, and bundling for mailing. Staff policies this year emphasized coverage of more individuals, better feature stories, and an effort at more student participation in producing a good newspaper.

Student Journalists Produce Rainier Echoes

Rick Biggerstaff, a discriminate reader, enjoys the Rainier Echoes.

Miss Nelson's office at circulation time? Havoc! Michele and Lois? Frustrated!

Who's Who

Getting a prolonged look at Auburnites early in the school year to establish identity was made possible by the Glance staff under the leadership of Fred Dalglish and Steve Barrow. Bob Butterfield, photographer, spent many hours during registration taking pictures. Darell McWilliams, Frank Burden and Val Dwyer did much of the paste-up. The alphabetical listing in this issue made identification much easier. Headaches, sleepless nights and an untiring staff made the presentation of the orange and purple directory possible in October before the annual fall festival.

Brewing up a purple and orange creation, Darell McWilliams, Fred Dalglish and Val Dwyer surprise the students by announcing the arrival of the Glance.

Not suspecting their subsequent victory, Miss Hessong and Melissa Nelson launch the Gibson girls into the publications campaign.

Auburnian Sub-getters Rate Special Awards

For those students participating in the Publications Campaign, sponsored by Rainier Vista, and Rainier Echoes, there were many rewards. Gibson Hall residents sold the most subscriptions and were given an ice cream feed. Students who sold 15 subscriptions were given a day on the slopes. Those bringing in 20 subscriptions were taken to the Triple L Ranch near Cle Elum to enjoy a day of sledding, tobogganing, snow ball fights, and a smorgasbord.

"Down the hatch, Linda!"

"Steven Brown, if you dare take a picture now I'll. . . !"

Growing Lettermen's Club Heightens Interest in Athletic Excellence

Thirty-five members of the Lettermen's Club claim they are, in their second year, "the elite club" on campus. OFFICERS ARE--STANDING: Bernie Schwisow, vice-president; Dave Rodriquez, president. KNEELING: Bill Shephard, Jim Gabutero, and Steve Aust.

This year, sports continued to be popular in terms of both participation and spectator interest. Careful organization by the intramural boards was largely responsible. Both were composed of class and club representatives. Among their functions were electing team captains, all-star teams, most valuable and most sportsmanlike players, scheduling games and handling all unsportsmanlike behavior.

The variety of organized sports included: flagball, basketball, track, badminton, and tennis. Added to the team sports this year was soccer, especially enjoyed by the Thai students.

Among individual sports sampled by the advanced P. E. class is archery. Shirlee Newell watches Connie Martin take a careful aim.

All eyes are on the ball as top flagball teams struggle for yardage.

Whether one can do a difficult stunt or not, jumping on the trampoline is a thrill-ask Jerry Page.

At last, the end. Staff members vent their exuberance on a relieved editor.

Next year as in the past forty-nine years there will be another Rainier Vista. But for me and most of the 1967-'68 Rainier Vista staff, the production work is finished.

At the beginning of the year I had no idea of the responsibilities of a yearbook editor, but soon I was confronted with keeping eight other ambitious staff members busy and trying to answer their questions.

To Linda and Denise, I would like to say "thank you" for their hours spent "learning the ropes" and helping when needed.

With regard to Nadine, I'm very thankful for her fine job of laying out class pictures and writing captions for most of the pages.

The annual would lack polish and sparkle without the help of Fred and Cherie. They deserve a big "thank you" for their copy work.

To Ann I wish to express much appreciation for her work with the business matters and her willingness to do odd jobs whenever needed.

For their work on the advertisements, I'm very grateful to Steve and Jim. If it weren't for our contributors and advertisers we could not have any extras. Steve deserves an extra "thank you" for his untiring support as a photographer, for his time spent in developing pictures, and for helping whenever we needed something extra done.

I would like to express my sincere appreciation to our advisors, Mr. and Mrs. Crays. Mrs. Crays' help in coordinating and editing was indispensable. Gratitude is also due our skillful and patient photographers from Harta Studio and our publisher, R. Wallace Pischel.

With the aid and fine cooperation of these individuals the production of the Rainier Vista has been a very rewarding experience, and the '68 Rainier Vista became the best yearbook we could make it.
